

MORNING APPEAL

Official Paper of Ormsby County

Sunday... 15 1887

Who is She?

The APPEAL has received the following printed communication: SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—"Miss Bertha von Hillern, the Boston artist, and Miss Belle Scott of Milwaukee have returned from a delightful trip to the Geysers and redwoods, and are at the Palace hotel. Miss von Hillern is especially pleased with the scenery at the Geysers, and with the grandeur of the redwood forests, which reminded her of some old cathedral in Europe, and has made sketches of the most sombre parts of the redwood forest, which she will finish at her studio in Virginia.

The APPEAL hasn't the honor of knowing Miss von Hillern but hopes next time she drops a letter that she will write it in her own hand and not print it. She seems to labor under the idea, that up in the wilds of Nevada we cannot read pen writing. In looking over our subscription lists we fail to identify the name of von Hillern or Belle Scott.

How she can manage to be an artist and compare the redwood forest with "some old European cathedral," stumps us completely. We never noticed any similarity. Please be more precise about the cathedral and state cost of construction and whether the pews are free or go of at auction. About stopping at the Palace. We would like to know if the young ladies merely register at the Palace or board by the week. Do they room there and take their meals out, or stand up Clerk Smith for the whole lay out.

Would a Nevada editor be allowed to call in the afternoon and inspect the "sombre sketches" on this slight acquaintance, inaugurated by the San Francisco correspondents? The fact that the Geysers please Miss von Hillern, is a great relief. It shows that the Geysers are all right. It collect.

OUR DISTRICT FAIR.

Everybody Should Help to Make It a Success.

The success of the Fair in Ormsby county, this year, ought to be particularly desired by every citizen alive to home interests and improvements. More work has been done and will be done this year to attract attention to the capabilities of our soil and climate, than has been done altogether in the past. Such work, pursued in a systematic way, is sure to attract attention from the home seekers, and it should be the object of every citizen to present our advantages in every possible way. The variety of our fruit products and their fine quality are only half appreciated by our residents. There is not one of the mountain fruits that is not better able to endure a long trip than the softer and more watery products of the valley. In taste and flavor they are acknowledged to be superior to them. It cannot be doubted that such fruits will eventually find their market, and the present duty of our citizens should be to work heartily for the common interest of making these resources known, and aiding in their development.

The Fair, this year, should be managed with a view to showing our product to strangers. If the work of advertising our county is rightly pursued, there ought to be many strangers ready to pay us a visit at Fair time, and the view of our products ought not to be a disappointment. Supporting the Fair should be a part of the general plan of the county development.

The necessity for harmony and earnest effort ought to be apparent, and we hope to see things in such a shape this year that we shall have exhibitors from all parts of the district, and a number of visitors from abroad to see what can be done here. We regard this as one of the prime features of the exhibit. If we would reap the full benefit of the Fair, it must be managed so as to secure the widest possible attention. We must catch the eye of the man who does not know about these things. The distribution of premiums among our farmers is in itself only a temporary stimulant; the full benefit is to be derived only from its aid in making known the capabilities of the District, and in securing the investment of capital here.

There is no place on earth where such grass, cattle and horses can be raised, as within a radius of 50 miles of Carson, and the Fair will make this fact apparent to everybody. Each citizen ought to send in something by way of an exhibit, and this will stimulate greater endeavor in years to come. Mason Valley, Carson Valley and Washoe will bring exhibits here, and it will rival the State Fair in excellence.

He Knew What He Was About.

A new reporter had joined the staff. He was writing up his first assignment, which was the resuscitation of a half-drowned woman. The city editor looked over the scribbler's shoulder, and this is what he read: "The fair form lay on the deck and her short pants—"

"Tut tut, young man, said the city editor, "none of your Zola realism—not on this great religious daily. Drop that pants business." The new reporter smiled softly and wrote on: "And her short pants for breath showed that consciousness was returning."—Hawtherne Bulletin.

THE TACOMA TEAM.

They Want to Learn Points from the Carson Boys.

Mr. Geo. Thaxter has just received the following letter: TACOMA, W. T., May 7, 1887. Friend Thaxter:—The papers, photograph and your letter received. Those scores were something to be proud of and the target the finest I ever saw. The shooters up here are very much interested and enthusiastic over the shooting of the Nevada men. The photograph has passed from one place to another for exhibition and every one is interested in it. I tell them that Carson stands in with her rifle men and unlike Tacoma, does not "kick" if the noise of the firing disturbs a few "cranks". We have decided to shoot the match on Sunday May 22, ten men 20 shots each, Standard target. It was also decided to make it one single match as we have a prospect of a match with the Port Townsend regulars and also the Seattle Rifle Association. We of course will shoot several matches with you during the coming Summer (provided it ever stops raining). I will write Mr. Ardery to act for us there. We have challenged the Tacoma Guards to shoot the ten men making the lowest average on the competition for position to shoot the Carsons. I will send you the scores of the scrub match in order that you may see how thoroughly rotten the average "Mossback" shoots a military rifle. Say, now I want to get a few pointers from you. What bullets, powder charge, rifle sights, etc., are you shooting. Give me what information you can, I am buried here so to speak and have never been able to get on to anything new, since my departure from old Nevada. Still shooting 70 grains, 450 grain bullet, old common sighted Sharps. Doing very fair shooting but think that the way I am holding on the bull, I should have better results. Last Sunday in medal competition I made 8-8-9-9-8-8-7-0-10-9-77. The miss was caused by some unknown deviltry of the inside machinery, went off just as I placed it to my shoulder. I fired an extra shot to see what I would have made and got another 8, making it 85. I won the medal however with the 77, the next highest man Box, with 69. Will do my best in the coming match but of course we can never beat your team. Tomorrow I have several bets on 75 guess I can make it all right. I will telegraph the scores Sunday evening and mail the targets next day. Mr. W. E. Box is now our team Captain. Let's hear from you when you have anything new. All the boys know you now, so we are all interested in what you and your team are doing. Mr. Laughton is here and will act as referee all right. Very Truly, J. M. BELL.

A QUEER PERFORMANCE.

Unseemly Troubles at the Unveiling of Garfield's Statue.

WASHINGTON, May 12th.—Ex-Speaker Keifer was not molested in the delivery of his oration today, although an effort was made to give him trouble and embarrassment. The scheme to cut him off at the end of twenty minutes by firing a salute from a battery stationed hard by, failed through the bad management of some of Keifer's enemies. They got the salute in the wrong place on the programme, and it was fired before he began talking. But the conspiracy to embarrass the orator was carried beyond saluting. Leaders of two or three of the bands in attendance were instructed to begin their music promptly at 2 o'clock. The oration began at 1:25, and at 2 o'clock the drummers beat a quiet tattoo in a threatening way, and shortly after one of the bands began playing.

It was stationed within a hundred feet of the speaker, who, it was supposed by the bandmen, had intended talking some time longer, but unfortunately for those who designed cutting him off, he finished a minute before the band began to play, and Gen. Phil Sheridan, who was commencing his acceptance speech, was cut out instead of Keifer.

General Sheridan was considerably incensed, and immediately ordered the music to stop. It did so. No sooner, however, had he spoken his first few words than another band, stationed on the opposite side of the rostrum, began to play under the impression that Keifer was still speaking.

President Cleveland then commenced to talk, and he had to stop till the band could be checked. The President and Gen. Sheridan were not a little perplexed, and their friends were indignant, but Keifer escaped through the wrath of his designing enemies, and has been complimented on every hand for the masterly manner in which he delivered the oration and its magnificent composition.

He says he never spent a prouder day in his life, that the affair passed off far more pleasantly than he could have hoped, and the congratulations he has received have been largely from men he had classed as his opponents.
